PROGRAMS WILL HELP TEACHERS
NIP PROBLEMS IN THE BUD

MISSOULA--

To help teachers recognize childhood problems early enough to prevent or minimize future trouble, Dr. Fred Weldon, associate professor of education and director of student affairs at the University of Montana, will present programs in schools in four communities in August.

The programs are scheduled for schools in Glendive, Aug. 19; Dutton, Aug. 26; Fairfield, Aug. 27 and Three Forks, Aug. 28.

The presentation will help teachers be more alert to signals of non-verbal behaviors and communications and provide them with "an early warning system," Weldon said.
